Course Introduction	This course provides a critical examination of India's assertive role in international relations, exploring its strategic interactions with global powerhouses and regional neighbors in the post-Cold War era. As the world witnesses the reorientation of power structures, with significant influence wielded by the United States and China, India's diplomatic maneuvers become a focal point for study. The course offers a comprehensive understanding of India's diplomatic history and its current policy directions, inviting students to scrutinize the country's expanding role in international diplomacy.
